

A Small, Shill Bark
Rothschild's Castle
It's Official 523 to 8
Communist Experiment

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

The Archbishop of Canterbury, with the former King far away, rebukes him for his want of living, his "alien associates," etc.

That sermon, and others to England like it, might give the impression that, in exile, Edward, England got rid of an undesirable parish.

The Archbishop of Canterbury knew all about King Edward's "notorious indiscretions" as the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Gloucester, called them; but the archbishop and other bishops did not seem to mind the King sat on his throne official head of the Church of England, able to make bishops and other church dignitaries. Why?

With all respect for the archbishop's high office, it must be said, that his comments on the former King suggest a small dog that keeps quiet while the burglar is in the house, and barks violently after the burglar has disappeared.

Edward, Duke of Windsor, former King of England, finds a temporary refuge in the Earl of Harewood, south of Vienna, a residence of the Baron Eugene De Rothschild.

You realize that the young duke has found an comfortable a refuge, and admire the forgiving nature of Baron De Rothschild. He must have looked back to days when his ex-religions were bound in their earlier kings in England, their teeth pulled out one at a time to make them give up their money. It was only under Cromwell that Jews were allowed to return to England and help build up national prosperity, and Cromwell got rid of an English king even more abhorred than Baldwin got rid of Edward.

Yesterday "Windsor" met solemnly in capitals of their respective states, to cast 523 votes for Roosevelt and 8 for Hoover and 1 for Governor Landon. That makes the election official. Four years from next month the country will know, approximately, the results of the great victory. All hope that they will be amazingly good.

President Delorico, Pa., of Ecuador, sent thirty Communist agents to live on the island of Pinar, one of the daniel Galapagos Islands, in the Pacific ocean, telling them, "You may now practice Communism in your heart's content. It is hard to do on an island that has only one water, a gulf, eggs, lizards and snakes to offer."

To practice Communism successfully in Ecuador, the agents must divide things, to do that, you must have some rich people with things to divide. There are no capitalists on the Galapagos Islands although Vincent, who has been there, is his yacht.

The "anti-Communist" specialists will be interested in the right arm of Walter Gorton. Sent to prison for forgery, he got free, because, decided that his right arm and hand were responsible for his misdeeds. Both are now paralyzed.

A noble form of "mind over matter" was displayed by a brave Englishman, who standing beside the fire waiting to be burned, first turned his right hand into the flames, saying, "I have had this hand bathed in fire. I had signed a renunciation of his Catholic beliefs."

By order of Pope Pius, whose health is improving, Catholics and Catholic Churches the world over are united in a campaign against Communism.

Catholic newspapers, books, and reviews constantly illustrate the dangers and ambushes of the Communist program and propaganda.

The Pope is reported by the Associated Press to have been pleased with the results of the anti-Communist campaign.

The striking women's union on the western coast thinks they will win some $100,000 in wages, and the ship owners have lost three or four million dollars.

At Chester, Pa., John Pew, who is building and Drydock Company to return to work, want money over after the New Year. Twelve hundred strikers who have lost jobs by the strike, "We will give Pew a kicking he will never forget." If an employer said that of his striking.

GIRL CHUM SLAYER HANGS SELF IN JAIL

HOPE MORGAN
"I Had to Kill Someone—Anyone"

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 15 (INS)—Deciding her own fate and revealing "jealousy" caused her to fire five lethal bullets into the body of a prospective bride, Hope Morgan, 25, confessed college-bred slayer, committed suicide in her jail cell today by hanging herself with her silk pajamas and stockings.

To the end, the brilliant personality of the girl, now sewed in bedclothes, a study piece, indicating she had been a student at the University of Michigan. She was the daughter of a Michigan State professor, because she was jealous of Miss Gillette's plan to marry.

One suicide note asked the world to forgive her what I did in a jealous mood. "I had to kill someone—anyone."

Because she could offer no other motive, a sanity commission was appointed to examine her and reported today. She seemed the sane girl.

$101,408 'Unearned' Commission Bared In State Quiz

Payment of "unearned" $101,408 was made by the Commonwealth Mutual Life Insurance Company to the State Underwriters Insurance Agency, Inc., during recent months of this year, officials of the agency were admitted today, it was learned in a quiz.

The agency did not business at all for five of those months and it was not received the money for months. Miss Katherine M. O'Leary, secretary for the state insurance department, told the quiz.

Putterson, who said when the Commonwealth company was being started, it "juggled" around with the agency accounts to $150,000, so as to be able to show the necessary $100,000 capital to write compulsory automobile insurance policies in this state.

Her testimony was given at a hearing in which Insurance Commissioner Francis J. DeLoach was asked a number of questions.

SCRAWLED NOTES BLAME 'JEALOUSY'

ears after committing suicide during the night.

Authorities, after cutting down her body, began a minute examination of her cell and found suicide notes scrawled on a magazine cover.

One note, pinned and read:

"My God forgive me I never thought I was going to have something I would never have."

Miss Giltner was to have been married last Saturday to Captain David Haddock, army officer.

MENTIONS 'SWEETHEART'

Another note mentioned a "sweetheart" and said she could not stand the "jealousy" of her "sweetheart" who had been "jealous" of her "sweetheart" for some time.

One note, scrawled in pencil, declared:

"I never got mixed up and couldn't stand the thought of being the only one left."

Police reported Miss Giltner had been the last of a popular society girl in this college which makes Miss Morgan to announce her wedding plans. She is one of the girls who had been classmates of Miss Morgan through grade school, high school and college.

LAST TO BE MARRIED

When Miss Giltner announced her wedding plans, police were told, Miss Morgan was "jealous" and did not want to be left alone. Miss Morgan's friends (she called remaining her) said that she would be the last to be married.

Miss Giltner and Miss Morgan were addressing invitations to the former's wedding when Miss Morgan suddenly shot her.

The scrawled note message into a magazine cover with her finger.

NOTE TO FATHER

She also mentioned her father in a scrawled note written in pencil.

"Dearest Father, I want you and the world to know that I did what I did because I thought I would never obtain that happiness."

"Please may I add that I want God to forgive me and the world to remember me and that was it. I loved my life and all that was in it. The world has been so kind and all the people in it that I want to have it."

The girl who had said a small note pinned to the magazine cover said she had been in the hospital for some time and had been in the hospital for some time.

MAIL FILE FOUND

Yesterday Sheriff A. J. McDonald of Indian Territory found a postmarked envelope for Captain Haddock, which he had taken to the post office during a visit with her father Sunday, shortly before the case of her death.

Deputies said Miss Morgan had been in the hospital for some time and had been in the hospital for some time.

part of her pajamas they said, and had the bottom legging to form a loop. They also walked the few steps from her "single" cell to the adjoining shower room, despite her dragging along with her the plain wooden chair from which she stepped to death.

Who appeared standing prominently placed the chair directly under the spot of the shower where feet above the floor. After stepping on the chair, she landed the circular rubber cover over her chin and looped it over the spot. Then she apparently stepped from the chair.

LIFELESS BODY FOUND

Guards entering the cell this morning found the lifeless body. Dr. Carl W. Bradford, a member of the faculty commission appointed to examine her, said he was "not surprised" over the girl's action, but declared further comment would be the commission's findings.

He declined at a camera's request.

'Impulse Killer' Told Her Own Story

LONDON, Dec. 15 (AP)—Miss Morgan's story of the homicidal mania which prompted her to kill her friend, Elizabeth Giltner, was a week later set out, revealing after her death state police records today an account of her mental condition.

Speaking like an automaton, the schoolgirl, heavily veiled, "impulse killer" told her story last Tuesday shortly after she killed Miss Giltner. It follows:

"Since October, 1935, I have been seized with the impulse to kill. I couldn't understand it myself, but I'd often find myself looking at some of my very best friends and was conscious of a desire to kill them."

CARRIED GUN ALL DAY

"Often I went home and got my father's gun and sometimes carried it around all day, feeling I would murder someone before returning home that night. Something always happened to stop my plans."

"I had the gun when I went to school home. I seemed to feel all right after I was there a while. Suddenly I looked up and stared at Beesie."

"I don't know why. Then that feeling came over me."

"My coat was hanging over the back of the chair and I just reached down and pulled out the gun, stuck it right up against Beesie and started shooting."

"Everything seemed sort of hazy now. I don't remember whether Beesie said anything or not. I don't think she did."

THREW TO SHOOT SELF

"Then I tried to shoot myself, but the gun wouldn't work."

"I watched her straighten up and sort of gasp. Then she fell. I got on my coat, got into my car and drove home. I put the gun back in my father's desk and started to drive. I drove, finally reaching Kalamazoo."

From there I drove to Battle Creek and then to Portland. At Portland, I called a friend named John McClellan, and asked him to come and get me. He did and all the way back I said nothing of the shooting."

ITALIANS, NAZIS AID SPAIN WAR

Madrid, Dec. 15 (AP)—Charging that Italy and Germany had been "voluntarily trained foreign soldiers," a federal government statement today confirmed that a strong, organized attack has opened northward of Madrid with the aim of completely overrunning the capital.

The foreign soldiers, it was semi-officially alleged, are mainly of Italian and German origin.

Immediately after opening, their big drive to fill the gaps in the Madrid front will be a fierce onslaught toward the city, according to the Spanish government.

Spanish government officials, according to the Spanish government, are working to organize the defense of the capital.

Victims In Double Tragedy

THONGS HAIL ROOSEVELT ON RETURN

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 15.—President Roosevelt today terminating an official cruise in South America.

Ahead of him in Washington was the spirit of Christmas and his inauguration. Behind him was the Inter-American conference at Buenos Aires.

Heavily tanned, the President came over the side of the cruiser Indianapolis at 3:30 this morning, meaning only long through to see a beautiful good-bye to the officers and men who had carried him 12,000 miles in the record-breaking time of 28 days.

Early morning crowds lined Charleston streets to give Roosevelt a rousing homecoming as he proceeded to his waiting motor train. At 9 o'clock he was en route to Washington and a resumption of the ease of office to which he was unvoluntarily exiled last month. Twenty-two days at sea under a tropical sun had exacted every indication of the strain of the recent campaign from the President's face. He appeared to be in the most robust health.

Six days spent in port at Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Port Au Spain had convinced him that the "good neighbor" policy was working admirably throughout the western hemisphere.

Life Story of England's New King—By David Hudson Hawley

ALL MACHINERY THRILLS MONARCH

FIXES AUTO, CLOCKS AND RADIO

This is the second chapter of an authoritative life story of Great Britain's new ruler. It describes the progress of the young Prince's mental formation following the coronation of his father, the late King George V, which made him the third in line for succession to the throne. At that time it was taken for granted that his older brother, Edward, would marry in due course and have heirs.

CHAPTER TWO
By HUDSON HAWLEY

His former Majesty, now David Windsor, Esq., was once asked what and his brothers would do should England ever become a republic, and the Civil List (annual money grant of Parliament to the royal family) ever be cut off.

"Oh, I'm sure we should all get along all right," the former merry monarch replied. "I'm sure I could find a job as a traveling salesman, and Henry could open a riding academy."

"And Bertie, he'd be the best off of us all by opening a machine repair shop."

Which, despite the levity of big brother's tone, is a remarkably sagacious observation. His present Majesty, George VI, can fix anything from a radio set to one of the perambulators of his baby daughters. He can tinker with his own motorcycle or car, put an old family clock to rights, and even drive a locomotive.

In fact, with the possible exception of his very distant kinsman, King Boris of Bulgaria, there is no more mechanical minded monarch in the world. That's what stood him in such good stead in the navy as a turret officer. That's what led him into aviation after his release from the navy and made him qualify as a pilot in such rapid fashion.

And that's why such nominally boring functions as opening the annual British Industries Fair find him not a perfunctory observer, but one who will go down the long line of stands and ask intelligent questions at each one.

And that, in modern, stodgy, badly industrialized democratic England, is worth far more than all his predecessor's skill at dancing the rumba, inventing new jazz tunes, and playing the bop.

King a Lover of Sports

(Photograph from International News Photograph Service)
King George VI has a wide diversion in sports. He has played in many of the branches. He is a better golf player than the now Duke of Windsor. On a pre-war visit of the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs players, on world tour, King George VI greeted the players in London.

England's new King is a southpaw at tennis. In 1921 he was in the Wimbledon matches, but was defeated. To Bill Tilden he gave invitation to battle over the net on tennis courts of Buckingham Palace. Of course, Bill won easily, but admitted the then Duke of York put up strong resistance.

body) if fell to his lot to address a number of religious bodies not allied with it.

He has several times addressed large gatherings of the Salvation Army, and in 1932 he represented the royal family at the great gathering in London's Albert Hall which consecrated the union of the Methodist churches through the amalgamation of the Wesleyans, the Primitive, and the Free Methodist. All these occasions called for the constant employment of the great kingly virtue, tact. And not once was it found missing.

His unswerving attention to the Boy Scout movement and his institution of the Duke of York's summer camp has already been noted. His many governmental functions, from postoffice employees to the well-salaried young bloods in the state ministries, have him to thank for one of the finest playing fields in the neighborhood of London.

As president of the Civil Service Sports Council, King George VI was instrumental in securing a 30-acre tract at Chiswick, just three-quarters of an hour out by bus from the center of the capital, at the cost of $150,000.

With a quite sizeable initial contribution from himself. It comprises three cricket squares, four soccer and one rugby football field, two field hockey enclosures, a running track and 27 tennis courts.

Not only was he present at the inaugural games, but he has made it a point to attend all the annual tournaments whenever he was in London.

Pipp of a Nap, Then Riches for Pipp

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 15 (AP)—Pipp has gone back to bed after the alarm clock for March 19.

He said a crystal ball told him that if he remained in bed until that day he 57th birthday, he would arrive at his property in good time.

So Joe, a sports promoter, went to bed November 23 and stayed there three weeks, baying the monotony with an occasional ball of his corner.

His hibernation was interrupted, however, by a fire in his restaurant downstairs.

At about 24 hours on his feet was too much for Joe. He consulted the crystal ball again, heard the property fortune repeated, and crawled back between the sheets last night.

U. S. CUTS SHIP MAIL RATES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—Postal officials said today they had ordered sharp reductions in mail pay rate to ship lines in line with the maritime commission's preparation of a new and direct-ship subsidy program.

In some instances, an official said, payments to mail contractors were slashed 50 per cent, but he added approval could be taken to the maritime commission for direct subsidies, replacing the mail payments.

In the mail readjustment, one subsidy was increased. The old rate was based on mail delivered to points more than 600 miles from coast.

On one occasion, in 1921, he invited Bill Tilden, then in his prime, to a friendly encounter on the courts back of Buckingham Palace. Riding to hounds used to be a favorite sport of his, and he took far less spills than brother Edward.

When the pound sterling went off gold in 1931, he followed the poet laureate; and being a good churchgoing father of a family he probably wouldn't approve of "The Everlasting Mercy" and "The Widow in the Bye Street"—though some of the oaths in them might make him nostalgic for his days in the navy.

New King 'Good Fellow' As Brother

Hollywood, Dec. 15 (AP)—George VI is every bit as good a fellow as his more famous brother, the Duke of Windsor.

So says May Christie, famed British novelist, who has met both on several occasions.

In private life Mrs. John S. Maxwell, she is visiting here with her husband, the novelist said.

"The new King is every bit as democratic as his more publicized brother. He's what Americans call a 'good fellow'."

"But one of the finest things about King George is his perfect home life. His marriage with Elizabeth was a true love match, and he adores his wife and children."

"He also has a great affection for the Eskimo."

"David," he went said, "is utterly unselfish and brave."

Among the many charitable and social bodies he has been president or patron of have been the Gordon Boys' Home, The British Empire Anti-Cancer body, the Institute of Hygiene, the British Red Cross, the Waifs and Strays Society, the Sewing Settlement, and the Newspaper Press Fund.

Peggy Otis Bride Today Of Nelson Odman

By BETTY ALDEN

"EMBARCKING upon the matrimonial seas" is an old phrase in society editors' jargon . . . but never have we known of a case in which it applies more literally than to the marriage today of Peggy Otis and Nelson Odman . . .

For not only is Mr. Odman a famous Swedish yachtman, who sails under the burgee of the Royal Swedish and Royal Nassau Yacht Clubs . . . but Peggy is a skilled sailor herself, and has spent the greater part of the last few summers on the decks of her father's racing yacht, the Saga . . . and then honeymoon in to be spent in Nassau, where they can do plenty more sailing . . .

The wedding took place this noon at the Marlborough street residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis, and was attended only by relatives and intimate friends of the family . . .

Several unusual features of the wedding added to its picturesque . . . the words of the marriage service were read by a party of the peace . . . and Peggy dispensed with the usual bridal suite and lace . . . in their place she wore a slim frock of lavender gray organza, made with a long flaring skirt and tight little jacket with long sleeves . . . a corsage of gardenias completed her outfit . . .

Her first cousin, Mary Otis, was the only attendant . . . She wore an afternoon gown of royal blue, made very simply on princess lines . . . She is the daughter of Mrs. Herbert Foster Otis of Marlborough street . . .

Baron Von Essen of Stockholm was best man for Mr. Odman, and owing to the simplicity of the wedding there were no brides . . .

The bride and groom are deferring their honeymoon in Nassau until after Christmas, which they plan to spend here in Boston with the bride's family . . . In the meantime they will be in Sweden where they will be at home after April 30 at Marlow, Maryland . . .

Peggy, who is currently being taken for Margaret Sullivan, the moving picture actress, was educated both here and abroad . . . Her late father, Harrison Gray Otis, was a leading member of the Boston bar, and the historic mansion which now serves as a museum for the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, bears his name and that of his famous ancestors . . .

Mr. Odman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Staten Odman of Stockholm and is enrolled in the Royal Bachelors, which has nothing to do with his marital state, and is a member of the Court and Tennis Club of Paris . . .

Dorothy Rackemann Makes Debut

THE YULETIDE SEASON was proclaimed high and wide in the decorations at Dorothy Rackemann's coming out party last evening at the Country Club . . .

Christmas trees were used in profusion to shed their spruce fragrance through the rooms and to brighten the Christmas atmosphere there were all sorts of red flowers and balloons interspersed in the green . . .

At the entrance dinner each girl received a small orchid corsage for a favor and the boys, of course, were given gardenia boutonnieres . . .

Dorothy, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Minch Emerson of Beacon street, wore a modish gown of white tulle with a square neck and puffed sleeves . . . and her mother was groomed in bright blue brocade . . .

Among Dorothy's sister girls who dined with her and the sisters were Violet Amory, Anne Ayer, Julia Parkhurst, Betty Cabot, Mary Elizabeth Clark, Nancy and Prudence Hill, Phyllis Hope, Charlotte Henshaw, Charlotte Lee, Eleanor Little, Anne Means, Marion Mott, Eleanor and Virginia Morse, Sarah Parker, Peggy Parker, Jane Ragle, Margaret Lee and Virginia Vail . . .

Other guests at the dinner included the Harding girls, Dorothy Louise and Elizabeth (Mrs. James M. Parker), whose brother, F. Austin Harding, Jr., was head usher . . . and Elizabeth Rackemann, the debutante's sister . . .

Mrs. Rackemann was a Mandell, which makes Dorothy a niece of Mrs. Neil W. Rice and Mrs. George Mandell . . . The ushers included Alexander Watson, Jr., of Wrentham, Henry F. Allen, Cleveland Amory, Frederick Ayer, Jr., H. Shippen Goodhue, Francis W. Sargent of Dover, H. Holton Wood of Brookline, Bruce Foster, Francis M. Rackemann, Jr., Wells Morse, Douglas Morger, Roger Pierce, Jr., John R. Chapin, Jr., Curtis Frost, C. Phillips Purdy, Jr., of Brookline and Hugh T. Putnam . . .

Will Honor Wellesley's President

PRESIDENT MILDRED H. McAFEE of Wellesley College, will be the guest of honor at a dinner and reception at the Women's City Club tomorrow evening . . . The reception will be held immediately preceding dinner with Mrs. Lorenz Muller introducing Miss McAfee to all the prominent club members . . . Mrs. Henry Tudor, president of the Women's Republican Club, will be among the prominent guests as will be Professor Sophie Hart, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. Joel Goldthwaite and Mrs. Sydney M. Harrison . . .

Others invited to dinner include Miss Frances Lee, Miss Katharine Taylor, Miss Mary Lee, Mrs. Robert Dodge, Miss Mildred Winslow and Miss E. McClelland . . .

Many Yuletide Parties On Calendar

IN THE COLLEGIATE WORLD of quarterly exams and end-of-year cramming, the goose hangs high. It's been many a season since the holiday dances were so many and varied. Everyone expects them to be exceedingly gay affairs, jolly reunions for home-coming students.

At Alpha Kappa Omega of Belknap Hall, the committee are counting to raise big sums of money for the Yuletide. Their tale is the only one which brightens the pre-holiday calendar. The stated by the new average before Christmas, December 15, in the Hotel Condit.

Madame Moore of Belmont residence the security on the committee, which includes John P. Ryan and Charles F. Ryan, co-presidents of the Yuletide committee.

Others helping with dance are: Mary H. Pyle, Peggy Virginia and Phyllis . . . Ruth, Gerald, Anne, Kate, Laura, Moore, Edna, Frederick, Lucetta, Foster, Rita, Wilson, Barbara, O'Hagan, Ellen Wilson, Lucetta, Foster, Ruth, and Charlotte and Eleanor Cavanaugh.

The Yuletide group is giving its committee members for the season and will also usher at the Yuletide. Among them are John P. O'Hagan, a senior of Boston College and president of the club, Richard Casey, vice-president, and James J. Casey, secretary.

Selecting a smooth dance band for the get-together are Joseph and Edward Milburn, John O'Leary, Albert Doyle, William F. Donovan, John D. Crowley, Jr., and James H. H. . . .

College Catholic Clubs Plan Dance

A bundle of severable old clothes is the only attraction required at the novel dance which the Catholic Clubs is sponsoring at the Walker Memorial Hall in Technology on the first Friday evening of the New Year.

Over a thousand are expected at the affair, which is planned by the students of 24 New England colleges.

William Johnston is in charge of the costly dance and his aides include Martin Welch, Billy Gallagher and Dorothy Crowley.

Don Daley, Jr., and Donald McClelland will distribute the clothing.

Drama Talk Delights Group

If John Mason Brown's next lecture on the theatre prove as interesting and edifying as the first which was given at the Copeland lecture room, the women of the local branch of the National Civic League who are sponsoring the series, need have no fear that the venture will not prove highly successful.

Mr. Brown, who is a prominent New York author and dramatic critic, chose "Broadway in Review" as the subject for his first lecture.

Miss Louise O'Brien, who arrived at the hall-room early to attend to her duties as secretary of the committee, was in great form to lead the group.

Miss Mary Wells, who took part in the recent Harvard Dramatic Club play, and an attractive ear to the theatrical group. Miss Gardner, Prudence Jones Putney and her mother were an attractive mother and daughter pair.

Miss John O'Brien was very young for a woman, and made with a tight waistline and flaring skirt, while Mrs. Brown, who was seen in black with a bright green hat, Miss John G. Putney, in brown with orange fringe under the skirt, was escorted to her seat by Mrs. Marshall Putney.

The lecture feature was also supported by Katherine O'Brien, who wore a black gown with a white collar and cuffs.

Betty Allen Honored

Though Betty Allen made her debut debut at a dance and month she was honored at another party given by her aunt, Mrs. Marshall Putney, on Monday night at her home on Heath street, Chestnut Hill.

The affair took the form of a luncheon and among those who attended were several of Mrs. Putney's friends, Miss Augusta Thompson, Jr., Mrs. Leonard Smithwick, Miss John Putney, Mrs. Winthrop Thayer, Jr., and Mrs. Hewitt Thayer.

BOOK-LENGTH NOVEL

in Pictorial Review

*January Issue
Just Out*

Three women in love with the same man. What a tense situation! In the end only one can win! Isabel wants Paul because she is bored. Joan wants him because she is romantic. Ana wants him because she understands him better than anyone in the world.

Here is a book-length novel destined to be talked about in all reading circles. It is published complete in the story-crowded January Pictorial Review, now on sale.

CHARLES HANSON TOWNE, Noted Poet and Critic, acclaims ERIKA ZASTROW'S Novel, This Is Tomorrow

"If you like a novel full of the spirit of youth, with delicate and flaming romance running like a thread all through it, you will be sure to care for Erika Zastrow's This Is Tomorrow."

"There is a lovely girl in it who came to believe that no one cared, in a great metropolis like New York, whether your heart broke or not; and there is another who was wise enough to know that you cannot bind love with chains; and still another girl who played with love, and a young man who felt there could be different kinds of loving—love that is madness, and love that is just kindness and affection."

"When he momentarily cared desperately for Joan Ashton, who had come from the perfumed lanes of Maryland to visit her sister Isabel in New York, he had to tell her how unpendable was his nature. And when he disillusioned her, she wondered if she could ever believe in any man again."

"She had seen Isabel, unfixed, unstable, run away from things, always; she had seen Ana's unhappiness; the city's fast tempo got on Joan's nerves."

"Yet out of the tempest, she was to find the peace she sought. There was an enduring love to be gained, if only one knew where to seek for it."

"This novel of young women enmeshed in the tangle of New York will cheer you, and bring back your own dreams of romance, and the glory that is youth."

—Charles Hanson Towne

LEISURE TO REPENT

CHAPTER XIII

Denise was all right. Felicia too was all right, but oh, how dull. She told Eustace cheerfully on New Year's Eve, "What I need's a small flirtation," and accepted in an entirely respectable manner the attention of a young man whom she met at a party that evening.

Her husband said: "He's a most modern kind of writer, and just the devil-looking." He was at least devil-looking in the Argentine fashion of blue-black hair and liquid eyes.

He had tea with Felicia four times in a week, and took her dancing one evening when Eustace had a night dinner. At the end of the week he said tenderly: "I have composed a poem poem for you, lovely woman."

It arrived, with one breakfast and a mail containing nothing but a note to Denise.

She said to Denise: "You told me to write a poem for you."

"You told me to write a poem
for you," she said. "You told

On the eve of his departure, she went once more to Felicia's room, to bid her goodnight.

"Felicia, who don't you have children?" No child but a child, she said.

There was an instant of silence between them, and then Denise said: "You told me to write a poem for you."

Felicia sat still, two weeks of silence, and then she said:
"You told me to write a poem for you."

The old man had said
nothing, and then she said:

Brilliant Gaiety Is the Accent on Prints

IT'S LIKE FINDING WINES smuggled under a snow-bank to come across such prints as these in the shops. Exotic in their freshness, distinctly a feminine flutter about them, what with flowing, wavy, and flare skirts. And colors that pulse, a brilliantly monochromatic air to the print, for you can't possibly guess the flower, but know that it's ravishing and does so much for a midseason-weary coat. Add a touch of a new fragrance and you're ready to conquer snow! For instance, "Jolie de Vigne," by Yvry, was the high-singing note of fragrance used with this new print track, and a Fashion Congress selection, modeled by Miss Janet McNeil. An intriguing feature is the surprise line which turns into two long, slender, lined with luminous violet-blue, repeating the color note of the flowers. Draped the sashes, twist them turban fashion, tie them anywhere you will—each time you reveal a striking new fashion facet in the track! Note the new off-lace braid.

"Towns" the rich perfume by Helena Rubinstein that goes beautifully with furs, all sumptuous fabrics, and the smartest matinee that are followed by special cocktail dates... this was the accent on a sophisticated little plain-and-print track that earned a Fashion Congress tag. Also modeled by Miss McNeil. Fine black crepe in a smoothly fitted and flared young track that will make a perfect base for ingenious accessories, and a trick jacket with prim flowers lined up on it, and immense sashes for you to wind yourself in like an Oriental princess. Both tracks are modestly priced. For shopping information, phone Annie Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

Good Posture Helps to Carry Weight Well

By IDA JEAN KAIN

POSTURE makes the figure. With poor posture, the small girl lacks distinction, the stocky girl appears clumsy, and the tall girl—who should be stately—looks apologetic. Be it had or beautiful, posture cannot be overlooked.

Posture is so important to beauty that in figure salons a shadowgraph is taken to expose where you slump. At home you can test your silhouette by standing sideways before a full-length mirror in your habitual posture—that is one way to see yourself as others see you.

Too many discerned rules—"chest out," "shoulders back" and "chin in"—result in rigidity and unattractiveness, which are tiring and anything but graceful. While the least restrictive of posture is the central principle of good posture, and weak strengthen certain muscles before you can build a good one.

Do you find it tiring to stand in an erect position? Weak, imperfect muscles are incapable of holding the body in good posture. As long as the muscles are weak they allow the body to sag and droop, and the result is that they are poor posture tends to become worse.

The following trunk flexing exercise helps to strengthen the abdominal and lower back muscles and corrects a rounded and drooping posture.

Position: Kneel on a mat of chair length, feet on floor, hands clasped behind your back.

Movement: Tuck trunk in, keeping the elbows straight in line. Twist to the right and then to the left, repeating the exercise 12 times.

If the fault is in the lower back rather than the shoulders, the muscles of the lower back, as well as those of the abdomen, should be strengthened. The following exercise is particularly helpful in the correction of lordosis. This exercise is called the half-bridge and was suggested by the late Eleanor Driscoll.

Position: Lie on the back, arms at sides, knees bent, feet on the floor.

Movement: Draw knees toward the chest, then, unbracing the knees, swing the legs over the head, raising the back off the floor until the weight is resting on the shoulders and broad arms. Return to position by flexing the knees.

CHRISTMAS! There is magic in that word that never fails to bring back a flood of memories. Unrelated incidents of by-gone days pop into our heads whenever we hear it spoken.

One of the most often recurrent memories is that of the Christmas dinner of the past—the turkey or goose, the cranberry sauce, and the dessert, whether it be cake or pudding.

Here are some helpful suggestions for the making of the Christmas dinner of the past—the turkey or goose, the cranberry sauce, and the dessert, whether it be cake or pudding.

Quinn on Go-Get-'Em Visit to St. Pete Ball Park

BOB QUINN WAS A MAN SO peculiarly in matters of the sea, as Bob Quinn, the buzz saw president of the Eastern Racing Association, who has just traipsed 1800 miles down the Atlantic seaboard to twist the hot water valves in his winter training quarters and maybe poke at the infield turf with his toe.

Quinn just doubled back from St. Petersburg, Fla., where ten weeks before his boat would be leaving for his winter's fat. The annual winter visit of the peppy distances of Tampa Bay. The sun sitters were dazed under the scolding swish of peppy tracks. Late always seems at a standstill in St. Pete.

But Bob did not pause to soak up the warmth. He prodded the local booster's committee to hire carpenters to patch up the loose boards in the stands of loan for outfield filler, shore up the batter's background. And he made a round of the rooms at the Pheil Hotel, which is one of those Main Street, show-case front tourist palaces, to pick out the most airy rooms for his athletes and made restaurant reservations for home-cooked meals.

Quinn's visit to St. Pete early in March and park his disgruntled hired men in the antiquated clubhouse before discovering that a winter rodno had dug up the soil of the ball park, leaving divots and gullies. The judge would

After a month on the side lines, Eddie Shore will return to the Bruin lineup tonight against the New York Americans at the Boston Garden.

Shore, who has been out of the lineup for a month, is expected to return tonight. He has been working hard to get back into the lineup, and his return is a big boost for the Bruins.

Lost Games

The Bruins have lost a number of games recently, and the fans are getting impatient. The team needs to win some games to get back into the playoffs.

The Pitiful Tale of the Dog and How He Saved Woman's Life

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

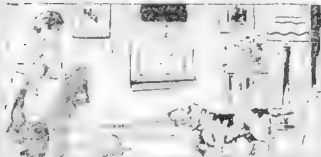

FLOYD GIBBONS could find no more rooms over the house of a wealthy retired physician.

The place was on the river bank, and there was a special reason why the McCormicks took it. The doctor who owned the place had to hunt. So did Frances' husband. The doctor had dogs, and his kennels were a fine place to keep the dogs.

McCormick was a man of the doctor's house. And there was where the doctor's house was.

Floyd Gibbons will pay good money for good TRUE stories. Hundreds of people in Boston and nearby towns have received ten-dollar and hundred-dollar bills for their stories. And there's no reason why you can't do the same, for, as Floyd says, everybody has had at least one adventure. Charles H. Wilcox of Concord, N. H., won one hundred and ten dollars for the story of his life's biggest moment, and you can do the same. For further details, see the box at the right side of the page.

HOW TO WIN
$100.00
And Membership In The Floyd Gibbons Adventure's Club

It's the easiest money you ever earned. Here's the only rule: YOUR STORY MUST BE TRUE. Everyone is eligible and you don't have to be a writer to compete, because Floyd will collaborate with you and from not any much spots. Just write down the TRUE story of your biggest thrill and mail it to Floyd, care of the Boston Evening American, 5 Witherspoon square, Boston. Write your name and address plainly, and keep a copy of your letter, as NO STORY CAN BE RETURNED. Do not send valuable pictures or souvenirs. Just send the FACTS!

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

BACK TO TOWN, the old-timey, old-timey, it's blue Monday, at the 11 o'clock hour, a lot of information has been gathered from the city's night life. The city's night life is a very interesting one, and it is one that is not often discussed in the city's newspapers. The city's night life is a very interesting one, and it is one that is not often discussed in the city's newspapers.

George Holland is a writer for the Boston Herald. He has written many articles about the city's night life, and he is a very well-known writer in the city. He has written many articles about the city's night life, and he is a very well-known writer in the city.

The Lights Go Up:

In his office late, City Censor McNary declares the status of the verboten, "The Children's Hour," is unchanged, and at the offices of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission, Supervisor Joseph F. O'Brien denies two rumors: (a) that special licenses will be given night-clubs for New Year's Eve privileges enabling them to remain open after 1 a. m., 1937. (b) that any rule is contemplated prohibiting waitresses from serving liquor. All these changes are subject to the General Court, Supervisor O'Brien makes known. The Mellen-Mandfield tiff isn't being discussed, but the Mayor is very angry.

The Copley square hotel district is excited about the discovery of a youngish "Raffles," who has been giving the "debs" a rush. It has been a magnificent rush. First seen last week at the "class" spots with a little beauty who came out two years ago, he switched his attentions to another post-deb of the same age.

It seems he is missing. One hotel is holding his baggage which included, besides a set of tails, a bad receipt. Another hotel is holding his "marker," or I. O. U., a bartender at the Towne Club is holding him in contempt for failing to observe the tradition of a dollar-stip for a "champagne cup, cucumbers and all." And what mystifies one of the hotels is the young man's last appearance. With one full-dress uniform in his room, he breezed in to say adieu to the clerk (with a request to cash a check) in another set of tails. Anyway, he's missing for the time, and he was a swell dancer.

The Copley-Plaza, Sheraton Room, the Somerset Balinese Room, and Westminster Blue Room and the Copley Square Hotel's lantern-lighted girl reported good Saturdays, bad Mondays. The Brunswick Casino's business has responded to the presence of Ranny Weeks and Roly Rogers' band and the new "Peasant Room" is proving a popular hideaway. Alice Gentile, incidentally, whose husband, Jay Probstel, is chief of staff at the Brunswick, was offered an engagement with the San Carlo Opera Company. She was one of the most famous "Carmens" when she was in-lituated with the Chicago Opera Company.

All-around Down Town:

A fairly good story is told of the Bradford Penitentiary. It is a story of a man who was in the penitentiary for a long time, and who was very well-known in the city. He was a very well-known man in the city, and he was a very well-known man in the city.

It is a story of a man who was in the penitentiary for a long time, and who was very well-known in the city. He was a very well-known man in the city, and he was a very well-known man in the city.

Comes the Dawn:

At the dawn of a new day, the city is a very different place. The city is a very different place, and it is a very different place. The city is a very different place, and it is a very different place. The city is a very different place, and it is a very different place.
